

Day 15 - Notice What's Working

We've already made some big moves together over the past two weeks - even though they've been one small step per day.

But when you're running a biz, it can be really easy to focus on what DIDN'T work. I bet you can already recall which day had you shuddering or procrastinating?

But today? We're not going to worry about what hasn't worked or is yet to pay off or anything like that. And in fact, we're not even going to MARKET today. What we are going to do is notice what has worked for you over the past 2 weeks.

Today's action step?

Write down 2-3 actions or habits that you've done consistently or enjoyed trying. No pressure to keep them up – this is just noticing what felt aligned.

Yep, that's it.

Still stuck? Jump in the Whatsapp group. I'm sure we can find something, even if it's not immediately to mind or a direct step of the kickstart!

Let's talk about what's worked for you

What felt surprisingly easy or energising over the past two weeks?

A large rectangular area with a soft gradient background transitioning from pink on the left to light blue on the right. This area is intended for the user to write their response to the question above.

What didn't feel like "marketing" but actually built connection or visibility?

A large rectangular area with a soft gradient background transitioning from pink on the left to light blue on the right. This area is intended for the user to write their response to the question above.

Where have you seen even the smallest signs of momentum?

A large rectangular area with a soft gradient background transitioning from pink on the left to light blue on the right. This area is intended for the user to write their response to the question above.