Rose hip

Rosehip oil is also known as rosehip seed oil. It's derived from the rosa canina rose bush growing in South America.

Unlike rose oil, which is extracted from rose petals, rosehip oil is pressed from the fruit and seeds of the wild rose plant.

Prized since ancient times for its valuable healing benefits, rosehip oil is loaded with skin-nourishing vitamins and essential fatty acids. It also contains phenols that have been shown to have antiviral, antibacterial, and antifungal properties. Rosehip oil is often used as a carrier oil for essential oils which are too intense to put on your skin directly.

LUBAN FRANKINCENSE

Frankincense Boswellia Sacra, also known as Luban, is a resin from the Boswellia Sacra tree in Oman. Products made from Boswellia extract have been used for centuries in folk medicine. It's believed to treat chronic inflammatory illnesses as well as several other immune health conditions.

It helps in healing wounds, sores, ulcers, carbuncles, hemorrhoids, and inflammations.

The essential oil of the frankincense possesses antiseptic, astringent, carminative, digestive, diuretic, sedative, uterine, and immune system therapeutic properties.

Used topically and cosmetically Frankincense oil helps to reduce the appearance of wrinkles and skin imperfections such as discoloration.

It stimulates the growth of new healthy cells, thus when used on cuts it promotes faster healing.

Luban products like oils, creams, masks are skin care products for the mature skin.
