CBD? Marijuana? THC? Cannabis? Hemp? What does it all mean???

Cannabis:

Cannabis Sativa the plant from which we derive the psychoactive drug, industrial fibers, hemp, and CBD

Marijuana:

Street/slang/government name for cannabis containing THC

Hemp:

Hemp is the Cannabis Plant with less than 0.3% THC in the volume of the dried flower. Hemp has no psychoactive qualities.

THC:

THC is short for Tetrahydrocannabinol. THC is the psychoactive component of the cannabis plant that will cause a 'high'. It is also a powerful medicinal compound.

CBD:

CBD is short for Cannabidiol. It is one of the 104 beneficial compounds found in the cannabis plant. It is also a powerful medicinal compound.

Terpenes:

Terpenes are basically the essence oils of the plant. Terpenes are extremely complex elements and vary from one strain to another. Terpenes contain the key to the most beneficial aspects of CBD.

What's all the hype about CBD?

- CBD may reduce inflammation
- CBD may relieve pain
- CBD may act as a natural anticonvulsant
- CBD may reduce anxiety and depression
- CBD may help with nausea and vomiting
- CBD may help balance appetite
- CBD may slow tumor growth
- CBD may promote homeostasis
- In all 50 states, regardless of marijuana laws, whether recreational or medicinal, CBD oil for animals and humans is 100 percent legal.

How does CBD work?

- CBD interacts with the endocannabinoidal system, which is made up of endocannabinoids and their receptors.
- It's part of the nervous system and found in every animal with a backbone.
- These receptors bind THC and CBD among other components of the cannabis plant.
- This system influences many processes related to pain, mood, immune function and much more.
- In a nutshell, CBD helps the body remember how to find balance.

Will it get my cat high???

- In short, the answer is no.
- CBD is a non psychoactive compound, meaning it doesn't produce any kind of "high" or "buzz."
- That's a good thing: Being "stoned" is far from funny for animals, as they are much more sensitive to the effects of cannabis than humans.

What About Side Effects?

- There is there is no known toxicity associated with CBD.
- If you are dosing your animal too much, too soon, you may notice the animal is more sleepy. Simply back down on the next dose.
- Due to feline metabolism there tends to be less choices in medication for cats. CBD seems to bridge this gap

Selecting a Safe and Effective Product

- Farming practices
- Full spectrum hemp flower, not industrial hemp, not isolate, not distillate
- Extraction method
- Concentration
- Quality ingredients
- Emphasis on Terpene profiles

Dosing Guidelines

- Determining the ideal dose will require some experimentation to find the right amount and how often.
- Whether you're using CBD oil for anxiety or pain relief, the right dose can vary quite a bit from one situation to the next.
- Start with a dose on the low end of the range and expect to see results in 30 – 60 minutes. If there is no change after an hour, increase the dosage. Occasionally improvements will take more than one treatment.

Dosing Guidelines

Basic dosing rule for cats is 1mg-5mg CBD for every 10 pounds of body weight

- To control pain, give every 4-8 hours or as needed.
- For other uses, or to break unwanted behavior patterns, give once or twice a day.

What I've found

- Finding high quality, safe, effective products can seem impossible
- Effective dosing eludes most people who try CBD for their cats
- CBD Oil in tincture drops is my preferred method of delivery for cats

Be Aware

- Many companies use CBD “Isolate” in their products which strips many of the beneficial compounds and elements to make oils of nearly 100% or “pure CBD.”
- This much inferior product is usually produced so hemp oil wholesalers can provide companies who do not farm their own hemp a consistent oil no matter where or how it it is grown and processed.

Be Aware

- Research has found when using CBD for long term medicinal reasons, a full-spectrum oil with the natural terpenes performs exponentially greater than a CBD isolate.
- Classified as a supplement...no oversight to assure authenticity and safety...yikes!
